

Ken Weiner

Chief Technology Officer

Ken Weiner is GumGum's Chief Technology Officer. With over 15 years of experience in digital technology, Ken leads his engineering and product teams to build the leading computer vision platform for marketers.

Ken was LA Business Journal's 2015 CTO of the Year and was included in the 2003 InfoWorld Top 100 for his open source project uPortal, the leading open source web portal framework for the higher education community that is still used by top universities today. He takes an active role in the ad tech industry and can be seen speaking at conferences and participating in advertising industry groups like IAB's Open RTB Working Group and LA Ad Tech Meetups.

Prior to GumGum, Ken was the Director of Engineering at lead-generation platform LowerMyBills.com which was acquired by Experian in 2005. Prior to LowerMyBills, Ken was an open source software consultant, project manager, and instructor at Interactive Business Solutions (IBS) which was acquired by Unicon Inc. in 2003.

Ken received a Bachelor of Science from UCLA and currently lives in Los Angeles, CA. Away from the office, Ken enjoys mountain biking, hiking, California native plants, jazz music, and playing the saxophone.